Scripture in Religious Education: Teaching and Transformation

The place of scripture in Religious Education is of preeminent importance. This year's symposium will examine the use of scripture through two lenses. Firstly, how can we better utilize scripture as a transformative agent in the classroom and amongst the wider school community. Secondly, how can we better teach scripture. With three renowned keynote speakers and a range of directed, interactive and engaging workshops with ample opportunities for informal networking our aim is to provide a rich and dialogic experience for those who attend

TESTIMONIALS FROM STUDENTS

Kim Wickham

Principal of Loreto College
Coorparoo

I completed the Graduate Certificate in Theology with BBI-TAITE. I enjoyed the intellectual rigor evident in each subject.

The course provided me an expanded understanding of theological concepts which I can apply to all aspects of my role. I attended the two Day Religious Education Symposium in Brisbane last year and completed REDU802.

I used this as the elective unit to complete my Graduate Certificate in Theological Studies."

Tameika Grist

Director of Pedagogy
Tasmania, Hobart

Using the National Symposium for Religious Education as the springboard for this subject was such a powerful way to be exposed to key current themes and challenges facing schools worldwide with issues around teaching Religion. The range of quality local and international speakers gave attendees an amazing range of topics to think about. The course gave enough scope to allow for personal context and interest to guide the deeper research.

2018's symposium was highly engaging. The potential for diversity in study makes this a highly attractive course. I loved the ability to engage with topics that I was interested in, and found the study component an extremely worthwhile experience. It created opportunity for engagement with other educators across Australia and the ability to think more deeply around the ways Christianity and Catholicism are approached across our educational landscapes. I would recommend this subject to any teacher interested in thinking more deeply around teaching Religion, or teaching or leading in Catholic schools.
